

MEDINA

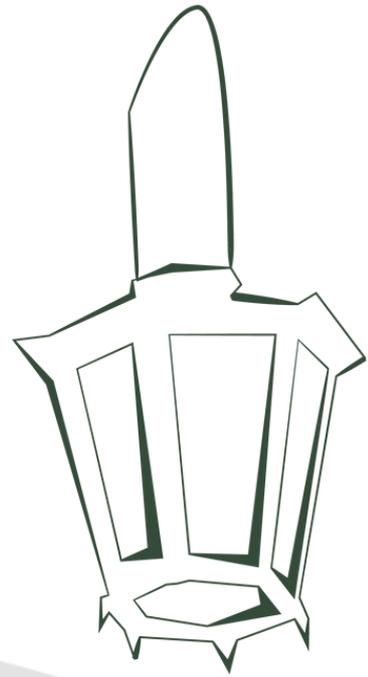

Medina - An Ethnic Touch to a Modern world.

The Arabs of the Mediterranean and beyond carried with them an array of flavour in every place they settled or conquered. With Malta being in the crossroads of these lands, we have curated an array of flavour, ingredients and dishes over the years.

Honey

Originally The Greeks called the island Melite (Μελίτη) which derives from the Greek word meli (μέλι) which means honey.

Sorbet

The Arabs are thought to have introduced sorbets to Malta and Sicily. Their 'sharbat' drink was made using mountain snow, and evolved into what we now know as sorbet.

Lacto Milk Stout

In the past it was seen as a source of energy among working class families and a source of iron during pregnancy.

Pomegranate

Pomegranates were highly valued by many cultures for its medicinal properties and symbolic significance and were introduced to the Maltese Islands by Arab traders.

Rabbit

The popularity of the modern day "fenkata", a national dish in Malta was paralleled during the Arab rule of Malta, mostly consumed by those of high social standing

Lemon

During the Islamic period, people began growing and eating more citrus fruits such as oranges and lemons. This was a way of getting enough Vitamin C, previously sought through wine, vinegar and cabbages

Cumin

The 3rd island making up the Maltese Archipelago; Comino is named after the cumin seed which grows across the island.
